Newspaper loses bid to unseal statement

By Scott Craven The Phoenix Gazette

The state Attorney General's Office need not divulge the contents of a 1983 statement made by Roy Romano to detectives investigating the murder of Don Bolles, a judge has ruled.

Maricopa County Superior Court Judge Marilyn Riddel on Wednesday denied a request by the Scottsdale Progress, which sought the information in defense of a $1 million libel lawsuit filed by Romeno.

Bolles, an Arizona Republic reporter, died June 13, 1976, 11 days after a bomb blew his car apart.

During arguments in the case last week, Assistant Attorney General Toni McClory said releasing the information would have jeopardized the Bolles investigation.

"We need to protect the integrity of the case because it is by no means over," McClory told Riddel. "If we released such information, no one connected to the case would speak to us again. We would lose all our sources."

Riddel also refused to let the Progress have access to a tape recording of a conversation between Keith Nation and Leo Lane, two sources used by the Progress in a series of stories linking Romano to the Bolles slaying. Romano's law-suit contends the stories were libelous.

Romano has admitted in court testimony that he spent eight years as an enforcer for organized crime, but he said he was not involved in the Bolles slaying.

McClory argued the release of the Nation tape and Romano's statement would hamper a possible retrial of John Harvey Adamson, the only man serving prison time in connection with Bolles' murder. Adamson had been sentenced to death, but the sentence was over turned in May by the 9th U.S Circuit Court of Appeals.

"I'No one has a right to look at our files," McClory said. "It would be a gross breach of our duty to allow private citizens to look through them."

David Bodney, attorney for the Progress, said his client needed to look at certain portions of the Bolles file to adequately defend itself in the lawsuit.

Bodney said he wanted Romano's 1983 statement to state investigators because it might contain information Romano failed to include in his deposition.

"Romano gave a full and complete statement to investigators' regarding the Bolles murder, and we believe we have every right to see it because it might come to bear in the case," Bodney, argued.

McClory said Bodney and the Progress had no right to see the statement because it was confiden tial.

Bodney said he wanted the recording of the conversation between Nation and Lane because Romano's attorney, Kraig Marton, had heard it.

William H. Webster, Director Federal Bureau of Investigation c/o Thomas E. Vornberger Unit Chief, Legal Division FBI Headquarters, Room 5448 Washington, D.C. 20535

Dear Judge Webster:

This is a request for reports and other documents believed to be in the custody and control of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

This office is involved in the investigation of the murder of Arizona Republic newspaper reporter Don Bolles who, as you may recall, was killed in June 1976 by a bomb which was placed under his vehicle. This has been an extensive, ongoing investigation which my office has been coordinating for quite some time. We have been following up every possible lead in this heinous crime, and it is necessary that we gather, review, and analyze any information regarding the case which comes to our attention.

One of those leads requires us to review any information relating to the Don Bolles homicide which may be in the files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. My staff has been in contact with the FBI field office in Phoenix which possesses some of those files. Personnel in that office have been very helpful in locating this information for us. We sincerely appreciate that cooperation, and we are requesting to review and obtain copies of these materials along with any files on this matter which may be stored or possessed in Washington, D.C. or at other field offices. We believe that provision of these documents and other items is appropriate under 5 U.S.C. § 552 (a)(b)(7).

Specifically requested, but not all-inclusive, are any materials related to:

DON BOLLES, (investigative reporter for the Arizona Republic) any information about Bolles, his activities, his meetings and cooperative efforts with FBI agents particularly in Phoenix and San Diego, and information pertaining to the murder investigation.

EDWARD LAZAR, a Phoenix businessman who was the victim of an apparent contract murder in February 1975. My office has discovered information indicating a possible link between the LAZAR and BOLLES murders.

Attached is a copy of one departmental memorandum which was recently released by the FBI to a newspaper reporter through a Freedom of Information Act request. This may aid you in locating some of the relevant materials. In addition, it has been learned that the Phoenix file number for the Bolles case may be 174-559.

Authorization to review and obtain these documents is of great importance to this office. The case remains one of vital concern to the State of Arizona.

I fully understand that your staff may determine that certain information, e.g., relating to confidential informants, may need to be edited. I know that agents who worked on this case years ago have carefully reviewed the Phoenix files recently specifically for that purpose.

Reporter was lured to site of fatal bombing

By Charles Kelly
The Arizona Republic

Arizona Republic reporter Don-Bolles was blown apart at 11:34 a.m. on June 2, 1976, as he backed his late-model Datsun out of a parking space in a lot south of a central Phoenix hotel.

A dynamite bomb attached with magnets to the bottom of his car was exploded by remote control, shattering Bolles legs and flinging him halfway out the driver's door.

Bolles, 47, a legislative reporter who previously had done extensive investigative reporting on organized-crime activity in Arizona, the racing industry, land fraud and conflict-of-interest schemes, had gone to the hotel for a meeting with John Harvey, Adamson.

Adamson, a low-level Phoenix hoodlum who ran a tow-truck company, had lured Bolles to the then-Hotel Clarendon, 401 W. Clarendon Ave., by claiming to have information about a land scam.

Adamson never showed up for the meeting. Instead, he phoned Bolles, who was waiting in the hotel lobby, and said he couldn't make it.

Minutes later, the torn and bleeding Bolles told those who rushed to his aid that Adamson had set him up.

When Bolles died of his injuries 11 days later, Adamson was arrested and accused of murder.

The police investigation quickly focused on Max Dunlap, a Phoenix contractor and land developer, and Neal Roberts, a Phoenix attorney.

Dunlap and Adamson had been at Roberts' office shortly before the bombing.

The day after the bombing, Dunlap and Roberts met at Durant's Restaurant and discussed raising money for Adamson's defense. Each later said that the other brought up the subject

A little more than a week after the blast but before Bolles died; Dunlap delivered $5,000 to $6,000 in cash to Adamson at the office of another. Phoenix attorney.

Dunlap later claimed that a mysterious stranger appeared in his driveway and asked him to deliver the money on behalf of Roberts.

Police and prosecutors put together a strong case against Adamson, and as the jury in his trial was being selected, he struck a plea bargain with them.

Adamson confessed that he had attached the bomb to Bolles car. He agreed to testify against Dunlap, who he said had hired him to kill the reporter, and against Chandler
